

5 days to save

Buy one, get one 50% off

All single-serve
coffee pods

Shop the ad

PRICES VALID
11/11/2018 - 11/17/2018
IN 92110

CHANGE ZIP >

AdChoices

David Halperin, Contributor

Attorney, advocate, writer at RepublicReport.org

State Attorneys General Open Major Investigations of Big For-Profit Colleges

The predatory for-profit colleges still have plenty of fight in them, and plenty of cash to hire lawyers to try to gut these investigations. But at last there is hope that another generation of students won't be deceived, abused, and abandoned, by the bad actors in the for-profit college industry.

01/27/2014 08:41 pm ET | Updated Dec 06, 2017

In tomorrow's State of the Union address, President Obama will likely revisit his plans to hold America's colleges and universities more accountable for helping U.S. students train for real careers. But while a stalemated Congress still blocks progress in many areas, a bipartisan group of state attorneys general just took a major step to help college students, especially veterans, single parents, and others struggling to support their families.

The house of cards built by the worst-performing higher education sector — predatory for-profit colleges — may at last be in peril of collapsing. In the past few days, four of the biggest for-profit college companies — Career Education Corp., Corinthian Colleges, Education Management Corp., and ITT Tech — all filed disclosures with the Securities and Exchange Commission saying they were now under investigation by state attorneys general. Each school said it was being probed by a group of 12-13 state AGs, with the AGs of Kentucky, Iowa, Pennsylvania, and Connecticut each taking the lead on investigating one of the companies. All four companies said they intended to cooperate. Kentucky Attorney General Jack Conway is leading a total of 32 state AGs who are investigating this troubled industry for misleading students about college costs, student loans, graduation rates, licensing requirements, placement results, and other matters.

These announcements come on the heels of the disclosures in recent months that the SEC and the federal Consumer Financial Protection Bureau are each investigating both ITT and Corinthian, and following the filing last year of a major lawsuit by California's AG Kamala Harris charging Corinthian with abusing and deceiving students. The Justice Department last year shut down one of the worst for-profit colleges, ATI, and both Justice, which also is pursuing a case against EDMC, and the Federal Trade Commission are now paying closer attention to deceptions and frauds in this industry.

The for-profit colleges continue to use their riches — the industry gets some $33 billion a year in taxpayer money — to hire expensive lobbyists and buy the allegiance of members of Congress to pressure the Obama administration to abandon its common sense gainful employment rule, which would cut off federal aid to career college programs that consistently leave students deep in debt. But these federal and state investigations are much less susceptible to political pressure. The predatory for-profit colleges still have plenty of fight in them, and plenty of cash to hire lawyers to try to gut these investigations. But at last there is real hope that another generation of students won't be deceived, abused, abandoned, and have their financial futures ruined by the morally reprehensible bad actors in the for-profit college industry.

This article also appears on Republic Report.

MORE:

Business

For Profit Colleges

Education Management Corp

Itt Tech

Jack Conway

You May Like

Sponsored Links by Taboola

'Americas Favorite Veterinarian' Reveals The One Thing Every Dog Owner Should Do

Ultimate Pet Nutrition

California is Set To Give Solar Panels To San Diego Families At No Cost

Estimates.Solar Quotes

Paris Hilton is Almost 40, Try Not To Smile When You See Her Now

6 Key Characteristics of Leading CFOs

Concur Resources

27 Discounts Seniors Get Only If They Know

Senior Discounts Club

Cowboy Boot Lovers Are Going Crazy Over This New Brand

Tecovas

---

MOST SHARED

Melania Trump
Calls For Deputy
National Security
Adviser's Firing

Create Linux and Windows virtual machines fast

Advertisement by Microsoft

Michelle Obama On Jenna And
Barbara Bush,
Chelsea Clinton: 'I Love Those Girls'

Judge Delays
Georgia Election
Results To Protect Provisional Ballots

Hugh Jackman
Recalls The Time
Stan Lee
Inadvertently Put Him In His Place

---

WHAT'S HOT

Alex Trebek Totally Nails How Donald
Trump Would Play
'Jeopardy!'

CNN Sues Trump For Revoking Jim Acosta's
White House Press
Credentials

Florida Church Ditched
As Polling Site Over
Sign Telling Christians
Not Vote For Democrats

Serena Williams' GQ
'Woman Of The Year'
Cover Sparks
Controversy

'Fred Flintstone'
Arrested In Florida For Speeding In Prehistoric
Smart Car

Eric Trump's Attempt To Hawk Christmas
Ornaments Leads To Holiday Jeers

Glasses-Wearers Are Going Crazy Over This Site

Advertisement by
GlassesUSA.com

Stan Lee's 1968
Column Denouncing
Racism 'Plaguing The World' Goes Viral Again

ABOUT US

RSS

User Agreement

ADVERTISE

FAQ

Privacy Policy

About Our Ads

Careers

Comment Policy

Contact Us

Archive

HuffPost Press Room

